Medical Interpreters Training Institute Units

Invention:

Individual training units which are part of a high-quality, turn-key training curriculum designed to prepare medical interpreters or for medical entrepreneurs seeking professional development.

Background:

The demand for quality medical interpreters exceeds the number of qualified and/or certified interpreters. There are several accredited training programs available for individuals who wish to become medical interpreters and/or acquire certifications or are seeking continuing education programs. Several of these programs are only provided in face to face settings and thus limiting the opportunity to take the training to the local community. There are two accredited online training medical interpreter training courses. Companies that provide medical interpreters to hospitals and other healthcare organizations need highly qualified and/or certified interpreters to meet the demand of their clients. Hospitals and healthcare organizations hire medical interpreters directly. The demand is high for common languages such as Spanish or French; however, there is also a strong demand for interpreters in Middle...
Eastern, Asian, and Mexican and Central American Indigenous languages.

Applications:

- Training for individuals seeking to become Spanish/English Interpreters.
- Training the trainer programs for organizations who wish to train their own employees.

Advantages:

- Modular/Units
- University Developed Curriculum

Licensing Manager:

Kevin McKee

KevinM2@tla.arizona.edu

520-626-1213

Inventors

Departmental Work

Arizona Public Media